Subject: Here:Say Workshop

Traverse City – Storytelling connects us to people. From the very beginning of mankind, stories have been told as a way to influence and understand man’s existence, linking the past and present to the future. Stories are the way we make sense of what is happening around us.

With storytelling shows gaining popularity, Here:Say, a Traverse City storytelling event, opened up in a local community space in 2013 and is just completing its fourth season. A Here:Say performance encourages the participants to tell their own stories on a given theme, which changes for each event.

Join Karen Stein, founder and creative director of Here:Say, on Monday, April 3, at 1 p.m. at the Traverse City Senior Center, 801 E. Front Street, for its second live storytelling workshop. The topic, “New Attitude,” is a story that relates an experience that changed the performer's mind about something or someone. So, if you have a story to share or just an idea, the workshop is an opportunity to learn how to improve your performance.

The workshop is free, but advanced registration is required.
